With simplicity and humility, Cardinal O'Connell expressed his gratitude to the many blessings, and his appreciation to friends for many good wishes, after presiding at a solemn mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross today.

The Mass of Thanksgiving was in simple observance of the day. The anniversary of the Cardinal's birth and the Church of the Holy Spirit, the feast of the Holy Virgin Mary.

More than 1000 persons thronged the Cathedral and were seated in the choir after the mass to pay their tribute in person to the Cardinal's birthday.

Hurleys Attend

Cardinal O'Connell was accompanied by Charles E. Hurley and Mrs. Helen Hurley. High Chief Justice Joseph A. Cahill, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, and other members of the Catholic Order of Foresters, delegates of the State and from various quarters of the diocese and children of the Cathedral, were present.

During his short address, the Cardinal remarked on the present situation of the Pope as the "Holy Father" and on the "Holy Spirit" who is the "Heart" of the Church.

And my heart is filled with deep gratitude, he continued, for being able to be here myself this beautiful day. I ask pardon of the Almighty for all the defects, omissions or omissions, of my poor life.

Thanks Offering

"I thank the priests of the diocese and the faithful for their kindness and prayers, during my absence of my 77th anniversary in the cardinalate as well as on my 77th birthday. I also want to thank all city, state and national officials for the affection they have shown on this occasion."

14 TOWNS, CITIES HOOD ELECTIONS SUPERVISORS EYE REVERE

Enhance of state supervisors to watch the balloting in Revere today, which interest in that city as citizens of 14 municipalities went to the polls to vote for mayors and other officials.

Mayor's contests were listed in Revere, Quincy, Plymouth, Haverhill, Lowell, and North Adams. Melrose has the distinction of presenting an unopposed, practically certain candidate in Mayor Robert F. Perkins.

Official elections are being held in Newton, Lawrence, Newburyport, Taunton, Lynn, and Chelsea, with only minor city offices to be held in the day's voting.

BATTLE IN TAUNTON

Presence of state supervisors in Taunton today is at the request of supporters of Councilman William H. Gallagher, who is opposing Mayor James M. O'Brien in the latter's fight for re-election.

The heated rivalry which has developed in the campaign is expected to draw out a large proportion of the city's registered vote. Councils are also scheduled for election in several of the town's communities.

Interest in Quincy's municipal election is the lightest in years. Mayor Thomas S. Butler is being opposed for reelection by former Mayor Thomas J. McGrath, and only about one-half of the registered voters are expected to cast ballots.

Also to be chosen are three councilors-at-large and two school committee members.

BIG VOTE IN HAVERTHILL

A large vote was being cast in Haverhill, where officials believe a new record might be established in a municipal election. Mayor George A. Delaney is opposed by State Senator Charles F. P. P.

Also in the list of candidates is the late Mayor George A. Delaney, who was defeated for reelection in the election last month. Delaney was also receiving heavy vote with interest centered in the contest between Mayor James M. O'Brien and Councilman Joseph H. Burke for mayor.

In Gloucester, the reelection of Mayor Weston H. Friend is opposed by former Mayor George Newell.

GILLIS GETS OUT VOTE Mayor Andrew J. Gillis of Newburyport was up early getting voters, especially in wards 2 and 4, where he is particularly interested in securing votes.

There is no majority election in Newburyport. This year a fairly heavy vote was indicated for early figures. Officials expected 40 per cent of the registered vote of 3101 would be cast before closing 10:00 a. m.

In Lawrence the voting and night. The two administrative contests appeared to be settled in advance by the large totals received by William J. Dolan and Alderman David J. Burke in the primaries.

Mrs. Simpson's Life Story

London Society Sought 'Vally'

Who is Wallis Simpson?
What is the life story of the glamorous American woman who has now taken the place of the modern romance?
What led to her romance with King Edward VIII?
"Cholly" Knickerbocker, America's foremost society reporter, has answered these questions in a revealing and AUTHENTIC biography of Mrs. Simpson, tracing her story from its very beginning to the astounding present.
The 12th installment follows:

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Illustrated by ALICE ALLEN

Little did the glamorous Wallis Warfield Simpson think, when she settled herself in that upper Berkeley street flat in London, as Ernest Simpson's bride, that within a decade she would be "front page news" or that her name was destined to become one of the best-known cognomens in the entire world.

The Wallis Warfield Simpson was—and still is even today when the spotlight of the universe are so mercilessly beating down upon her—a woman with no desire to write pages of history.
Those who know her also know that she wrote nothing about her life. She only wanted to marry the man she loved and win, in return, wealth and advice for her children.
"David Windsor" Wallis would still be just as unknown to become his wife.
The glittering jigsaw of being a queen's daughter had been torn to bits. Truth to tell, the value of the Buckingham Palace marriage had been broken. The former had been broken.

Entertains in Flat

However, the English royal family and Buckingham Palace paid very little. Wallis Warfield Simpson's life was in 1923, when she had been married back from their honeymoon, were entertaining in a quiet manner at the Upper Berkeley street flat.
London society meant little to her. Ernest Simpson's friends in the United States and abroad, who were invited to private dinners in the flat, were the only ones who were invited to the flat.

She was perfectly content with her small circle of friends, who were invited to the flat. She was perfectly content with her small circle of friends, who were invited to the flat. She was perfectly content with her small circle of friends, who were invited to the flat.

Merry Christmas?
Needy Wonder

By THE CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND EDITOR

Seventeen days until Christmas! That means the whirlwind of shopping and preparing for holidays, planning parties and celebrations, decorating your homes, is beginning anew.

It's a happy whirlwind, though, for most of you.

In the midst of your preparations for a Merry Christmas, remember the prospect facing those made of the destitute in Greater Boston.

They don't say Merry Christmas.

They say Merry Christmas—Famine!

For instance, there is "Case 206," whose appeal is printed in full below with other pleas for assistance. It was written by the mother of six children, who, although she has been working in a hospital for ten years, with little hope of recovery, has been spending all her spare time since she said:

"The children are so small it is hard for me to go through such hardships when they don't understand the circumstances."

You know what it will be like for them if there is no Christmas. It would not be such a sight if they could have a Christmas, but they must have a Christmas. Please help me. Ask me how you can help. Mrs. A. C. B. R.

THEY SAY LITTLE

Gaily decorated trees, cheerful voices, and the warm glow of something everyone should enjoy on Christmas night are the things that make the season so warm and so dear. But for many of the children in Greater Boston, Christmas is a time of hardship and sorrow. They are the children of the Christmas Basket Fund, and they are the children of the Christmas Basket Fund.

The Boston Evening American is printing a list of the children of the Christmas Basket Fund, and it is the duty of every citizen to help them. The children of the Christmas Basket Fund are the children of the Christmas Basket Fund.

Madrid, Dec. 8 (AP)—Quaking to a thunderous bombardment that sent scores of shells screaming into the western and mid-eastern section of the city, Madrid today plotted itself for the second time in its history to take the capital.

The final attack on Madrid is expected today, Gen. Quipio De Llano, insurgent spokesman, said over the Seville radio. Bombardments of Madrid have been in progress since the 25th of July, and the city has been in a state of siege ever since.

Dismissing buildings, starting fires, and adding an unnumbered toll to the death list, shells rained into the center along the east bank of the Manzanares.

Others attacked in a fury, troops of the city and defeated near the British embassy.

Thirty-three Rebel airplanes meanwhile bombarded Guadalupe, southeast of Madrid. Heavy fighting is reported going on there, and the capture of the city, leads to the belief that Rebel General Francisco Franco plans to attack the capital from the northeast as well as from the west.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 8 (AP)—Argentina will sign four international peace treaties, Carlos Saenz de Luna, Argentine foreign minister, said today, in the support of other republics in the drive to guarantee peace in the Western World.

Lima, president of the Inter-American conference and recent winner of the Nobel peace prize, declared his belief "all other American nations" also will ratify the pact.

The declaration was the highlight of an Associated Press survey among diplomats of such American republics which, as yet, have not ratified all agreements. The conference is pledged to coordinate them into practical peace machinery.

The ratification drive, to which Bolivia and El Salvador reacted favorably, provided with the disavowal of Mexico's refusal to ratify a revised version of the Kellogg-Briand treaty, and the Argentine anti-war treaty.

Francisco, Chile, Uruguay, and Mexico, however, are still in the process of ratifying the pact.

DELUXE Inaugural TRIP

ALL EXPENSES
PAID FOR 20

Twenty Massachusetts high school students, 10 girls and 10 boys, are going to Washington, January 20, to see President Roosevelt's second inauguration.

These students will ride in Pullmans, stay at the nation's finest hotels, enjoy luncheons, dinners, receptions and amusement trips—and everything will be paid for.

From the moment they leave their homes until they reach all their expenses will be paid, from contestants.

The Washington tour—an opportunity every male, female and child in the United States would like to have—will be the signature reward for sending in the best answers to the ten historical questions that have been published daily in the Boston Evening American.

Thousands of boys and girls have answered the questions. Hundreds have written in their answers. And hundreds more will have them in the mail by tonight.

All of the money that the prize fund has in the hands of the trustees, for transportation, during the tour, will be paid Monday, the day after the questions have been mailed.

Every boy and girl who answers the questions will receive a certificate of appreciation, to be sent to the student by the trustees.

Each of the ten questions will be published separately in the next issue of the paper. The questions will be sent to the trustees by the trustees.

Marie Dionne Learns About Christmas

Quin Marie presents a perfect picture of childish happiness over the approach of Christmas. There is an air of excitement in the Dionne nursery. Marie with childish devotion is holding a picture of the Christ Child. Nurse Noel has already explained in childhood terms the meaning of the picture.

Nurse Noel is telling Quin Marie the old, old Christmas story of the birth of the Christ Child. With complete absorption, Marie listens and points to the picture of the Infant Jesus that nurse is holding. The Quins are old enough this year to begin to understand the meaning of Christmas. Religious teaching, in simple French sentences, plays a large role in the early education of the famous sisters.

And here is Quin Marie showing that the story of the Christ Child has been a very real thing to her as she knows the picture of the Baby Jesus given to her by Nurse Noel. Christmas will mean much more to the Quins this year as a result of their careful religious upbringing.

Robert Taylor's Life Story Spark of Genius Seen by Magnate

When Mr. Mayer told Robert Taylor to go to the best tailor in Hollywood and charge the suits in the dark-braided movie idol knew he "had arrived." Lydia Calvert, special writer for the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, tells of the suspense leading to this moment in today's installment.

By LYDIA CALVERT

Special to Boston Evening American

Hollywood, Dec. 8.—Whispering goes on around studio lots just as it does at a boarding school.

And as Robert Taylor had been little more than a boy when he was first seen in the movies, he was now going to look at it more.

"Mr. Mayer had seen it," when a messenger tapped him on the arm and told him that the magnate wanted to see him. But the messenger had the studio's attention of being called on before the Dean for some unremembered infraction.

When he walked into the office, he was greeted by a man who was casual and friendly, no effusive and encouraging enough to get him to work.

Uncanny Ability

Taylor's ability to recognize when he was in a position to work was not a new thing to him. He had known it before.

When he was not recognized, he was not in a position to work. He was not in a position to work.

Don't miss tomorrow's installment of Robert Taylor's bright star of the Hollywood horizon.

'Thrush' Less Common in Infants

By LOUIS S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is a common belief that infants are more susceptible to thrush than adults. However, recent statistics show that the incidence of this condition has decreased significantly in the past few years. This is due to improved hygiene and the use of antiseptics in the treatment of the condition. Parents should be aware of the symptoms, which include white patches in the mouth and on the tongue, and seek medical attention if they observe these signs.

Symmetry of Form for Those of 'Teen Age With Over-Thin Contours

By DONNA GRACE
YOUNG girls in their teens are very eager to have beautiful figures with well proportioned features as well as slim lines. The curve should be in evidence at the bust line to give one the normal and beautiful figure we all desire.

There are many reasons why the young girls of today are so eager to have beautiful figures. They are not only for their own sake, but also for the sake of their future husbands. They want to be the most beautiful girls in the room, the girls who are the envy of all. They want to be the girls who are the most popular, the girls who are the most admired. Dread Middle Age? Pooh!

Say These Happy, Sensible Women

WHAT is so terrible about growing older? Aren't we all doing it every day in the year? Most women have more leisure after fifty than they ever had before. Wouldn't it be great if we could just ENJOY ourselves... read all the books and magazines we want to... see the new movies... drive our own cars... travel when we feel like it... play with our grandchildren... be active in church work... lodge work... politics?

WE CAN! Middle age can be happy, useful, and delightful if our health is good. There's the secret.

Do you dread middle age? Do you suffer from "hot flashes," blue spells, nervousness, and all the other irregularities which are symptoms of the Change of Life? Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly for awhile. It will quiet your nerves, induce restful sleep, tone up your system, and help you over this critical period. Life will seem worth living again.

By their own statements, this famous medicine has benefited thousands of women who were enduring just such troubles as you are. Get a bottle today.

"I Had to Lie Down Every Two Hours" says Mrs. Thomas

A help in the hospital told me about it. I was suffering from Change of Life and high blood pressure. I had to lie down every two or three hours. Since I took it I feel so much better and certainly recovered it to other women at this time of life." Mrs. A. Thomas, 414 N. Duane St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The Cast that Everybody Knows

DIRECTORS of business, makers of laws, educators, actors, men who toil, mothers and fathers, sons and daughters—they all know Jiggs, Skippy, Tillie, Popeye, Blondie, the Katzenjammer Kids, Flash Gordon, Barney Google, Toots & Casper, the Little King—all leading members of the All-Star Cast which entertains America's millions in Puck-The Comic Weekly, distributed through the 17 great Hearst Sunday newspapers.

The reason is perfectly clear. This great All-Star Cast (and the only one in the field of comics) presents the basic themes of life, literature and drama—laughs, loves, thrills and tears—so true to human nature that they touch a responsive chord in the old and young alike. In the entire field of entertainment there is no record to equal the continuous run of the All-Star Cast in Puck-The Comic Weekly. For two generations its popularity has grown greater each year—its audience larger and its influence more widespread.

The editorial genius that assembles this All-Star Cast knows how to present it adroitly—knows how to hold reading millions to the printed page—knows also how to preserve the proper balance between editorial and advertising so that interest in both will be maintained.

Powerful Consumer Demand

Full-page advertisements in Puck-The Comic Weekly capture the same lively interest as that developed editorially by the All-Star Cast. And from this lively interest in Puck-The Comic Weekly advertising comes a powerful consumer demand that determines what dealers stock, display and sell in the 995 cities and towns of 10,000 population and over, where 73% of Puck-The Comic Weekly's U. S. circulation concentrates.

Remember, it's the cast that makes the comics. The one and only All-Star Cast is in Puck-The Comic Weekly. It's the surest guarantee of star-pulling power.

We would welcome the opportunity to show what the All-Star Cast has done for other advertisers. Please phone COLUMBUS 5-2642 New York or Superior 6820 Chicago.

Leaders of Industry

The late Judge Elbert H. Gary once asked a newspaper reporter: "Will Barney Google's Spark Plug win the International Derby?" The newspaper reporter looked amazed. The late Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation laughed and added: "Yesterday, at a directors' meeting, one of the men asked that question. I found every single one of our directors read the comics."

America's Darling

"I like the comic section of the papers best of all. Every Sunday my daddy reads The Comic Weekly funnies to me. And, do you know what? I get some good ideas for my school work play every once in a while. I like all the comics; they're just like a motion 'pitcher'—they seem so real."

—Shirley Temple, Twentieth Century-Fox Star

An Authority on Public Opinion

Doctor George H. Gallup, after completing his famous survey of the personal reading habits of 25,000 people interviewed in their homes, made this statement:

"More people read the best comic than the front page banner story. . . Bankers, University Presidents, Professors, Doctors and Lawyers read comics as avidly as Truck Drivers, Waiters and Day Laborers."

A Successful National Advertiser

"There is no doubt that comics have a definite place in American life and appeal to all kinds of people in all age groups. Our experience as an advertiser in Puck-The Comic Weekly during the past three years confirms that belief."

—W. N. Connolly, S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc.

An Eminent Psychologist

Professor H. A. Overstreet in his famous book "Influencing Human Behavior" says:

"There must, in other words, be movement if we are to hold attention very long. . . Hence, if one wishes to capture and hold another person's attention, he must be sure that what he offers by way of stimulus moves. . . We might call this perhaps the most fundamental of all requirements."

Popular M-G-M Movie Star

"Of course, I read the comics all the time but only the best of them. I think Jiggs, Popeye, Tillie, the Little King, the Katzenjammers and all the rest of the pranksters are the gayest, most lovable characters in the world. To me, they are flesh-and-blood artists—not paper-and-ink. They not only entertain but they teach me what will delight America's millions in my own art. They are to my way of thinking the pattern from which histrionic greatness springs."

—Robert Taylor

Barge Master Tells of Wild Ride After the Cable Snapped

As a barge master, I know a thing or two about storms. I've been through many a wild ride, and I can tell you that the worst of them all was the one that happened last night. It was a real storm, and it was a real ride.

The barge was full of cargo, and it was a real test for the crew. The waves were so high that the barge was almost lost. But the crew held on, and they made it through.

LEWIS HANEY ON TRADE

Business Upturn
LIKELY TO LAST
Remainder of Year

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Dec. 8.—Two or three weeks ago, a sharp upturn in general business activity began to show in the statistical indexes. That upturn continues and seems likely to carry through the remainder of the year.

Several characteristic symptoms of the times are to be found in the news of the week.

For one thing, there is the tendency on the part of the public to go in for higher priced goods, sometimes called luxuries. This is reported from nearly all sections of the country.

Of course, too forward buying and increased "inflated orders" continue in evidence.

Then there is the less obvious symptom of a belated recovery in some of the hitherto backward industries. (Incidentally, this is attended by a shift in interest in the stock market.)

Not only have the steel and cotton textile industries become definitely established at a profitable level, but such laggards as the coal, railway equipment and leather and shoe industries appear to be looking up.

Private and productive employment should be increased by this development.

Finally, in natural sequence, come the signs of administration unwillingness to work the controls as the boom gets started. The politicians have sided power. Now they are afraid to use it.

They keep on saying to business men "Sit up to you."

Thus the lead of the Securities and Exchange Commission now tells the bankers that they are responsible for speculative excesses.

The Security and Exchange Commission is going ahead with plans to reform stock exchange speculation and the price of seats on the exchange has fallen to relatively low levels.

The proposed reforms are, in my opinion, partly good. It does not seem probable, however, that they will have much effect in preventing a boom.

Probably the result will be that, if the boom is stopped at all, it will be as a result of a touchy, unorthodox share the wealth measures, not of any orderly and planned control.

For the next 30 days, at least, business looks good.

The steel industry, considering the season, continues to pour up and orders have already been booked to continue the present near-capacity activity into January.

As a result, the price of steel scrap material has risen up at Pittsburgh and has risen at several other points.

Despite labor troubles, which have affected Chrysler's output, the automobile volume continues above the high level of a year ago, with orders and new registrations pointing higher.

Even the still depressed building situation seems to have taken another turn for the better in the past two weeks. Real estate activity is reported to be gaining.

The cotton textile boom, as yet, shows no sign of lagging. Orders keep coming in and, though the mills are operating at over 90 per cent above sustained normal, they maintain good backlogs. The spectacle of cotton mills running at night has again appeared in New England.

Trade returns are favorable almost everywhere, although the Pacific Coast maritime and warehouse strikes are a serious drawback.

As is to be expected under such circumstances, commodity prices have been rising rapidly. Last week saw the highest average since 1930. The only notable decline occurred in corn, tin and steel.

Are we in the old economic whirlwind? Are people buying because prices are going up, while prices go up because people are buying? Is this "reflation"?

New York, Dec. 8.—The rising tide of general business is promoting increased demand for capital goods—for new and better plant and equipment for industry.

Trick peddled and trade tricks were futile as device for breaking the deadlock in the heavy industry.

The mere passage of time and the expansion in trade volume in the consumer industries created a need for capital goods and this constitutes a solid basis for revival.

Ball Testifies at Hearing

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Senate investigators heard today that the late Van Sweringen brothers lost their $3,000,000,000 rail and industrial system on September 30, 1935—and "regained control the same day without putting up a live-cent piece."

This testimony was given by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee at the same time as the probability grew that J. P. Morgan would be summoned to a Capital witness stand.

Ball testified that in the third time in four years, in answer to questions as to his reasons for requesting control of the nation's largest transportation set-up.

Ball testified that their whole system was controlled through Bell South of the Atlantic, which owned the second day of hearings in the Senate's railway financing investigation.

George A. Ball, soft-spoken, 60-year-old, was called to the witness stand by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

He testified that the Van Sweringens lost their $3,000,000,000 rail and industrial system on September 30, 1935—and "regained control the same day without putting up a live-cent piece."

New York, Dec. 8 (INS) A mixed reaction was noted today in the manufacturing and retail distribution field in the wake of the Supreme Court decision upholding the "fair trade" laws of California and Illinois.

John H. Patterson, dynamo founder of the National Cash Register Company, was perhaps the first individualist to conduct schools for salesmen, to call himself "chief instructor of salesmen," to encourage his salesmen to "trouble" anybody who refused to do more than "buy other manufacturer's of his line to give a genuine testimonial to both as act and a science."

After the success of his training of salesmen Mr. Patterson offered a prize for the best statement on the chief benefit they had derived from their schools at headquarters.

Not one salesman, but the majority declared that they had received their territories full of tested and enthusiastic customers. The time of depression and unemployment—because of Mr. Patterson's own exhaustion to them.

Our Cardinal Is 77

UNDER the patronage of the Virgin Immaculate, whose feast his church celebrates, Cardinal O'Connell today observes his 77th birthday.

American in the most glorious sense of the word; New Englander who has been guided by the finest traditions of the section in which he was born and where he has lived most of his life, and citizen of the world through his princely rank in the Catholic Church, Cardinal O'Connell is, above all, an humble minister in the service of his people. And "his people" include not only those of his own faith. They are, and they have always been, the people of all faiths.

Thus, today, it is not alone Boston and Massachusetts, which know him best and have reason to love him most, that congratulate the Cardinal on his natal day. It is not alone New England, which has profited most by his zealous labors, that wishes him many more years of health and activity. The congratulations and the best wishes come from men and women everywhere.

In these congratulations and in these wishes for many more happy years, the Boston Evening American is proud to join.

They Stand Together

THE UNITED STATES, seeking to break British control of trans-Atlantic telephone communications with the aid of France, has walked into the usual trap.

Disturbed by the fact that all channels of telephone communication between the United States and Europe ran through London, the United States transferred one of the channels to France.

The transfer was attended by considerable ceremony, with representatives of the United States and American nations voicing many warm expressions of friendship.

The ceremony over, America discovered France had negotiated a SECRET AGREEMENT WITH ENGLAND, providing that no telephone calls originating in any part of Europe outside of France would be transmitted to the United States on the Paris channel.

The British monopoly is thus preserved, thanks to the latest example of French antagonism and duplicity.

If England wants the chance to censor, delay and spy upon telephone messages between Europeans and Americans, it is all right with France.

ANYTHING England does is all right with France, as long as the victim is the creditor to whom both nations owe money THEY REFUSE TO PAY.

The common bond of debt repudiation between France and England is strong.

Logan Urges Merit Rule

IT IS encouraging to learn that Senator Logan, of Kentucky, will introduce a bill in Congress next month to TRANSLATE INTO ACTION President Roosevelt's proposals for extending the Civil Service principle in the Federal government.

Consistent with the Chief Executive's expressed ideas on the subject, Senator Logan is drafting a proposed law for ending the distribution of government jobs "through political pull."

In discussing his new bill, similar in nature to one which died in the closing sessions of the last Congressional session, Logan was quoted by Universal Service as saying:

"This thing of a man getting a government job just because he can control a few votes in some district is obnoxious and ought to be stopped."

Senator Logan believes those already on the payroll who are shown to be incompetent should be dropped.

In the nature of things, favored jobholders will oppose legislation designed to upset their vested rights.

In the circumstances, if the general public, which pays the freight, is apathetic to such forward looking reforms, then little progress can be anticipated.

A strong demand should be built up in behalf of the test of fitness in selecting governmental employees.

Senator Logan's efforts deserve widespread support and encouragement.

A Problem for Miss Fairfax

THE Rev. S. Ralph Harlow of Smith College, addressing a Wesleyan University conference, talked of marriage.

"Husbands and wives," he said, "must love one another and they must LIKE one another also."

And, as though for the benefit of us who can not see how a person can do one without the other, the clergyman added:

"The tendency in marriage is in the fact that it is possible to love a person for whom you have no liking."

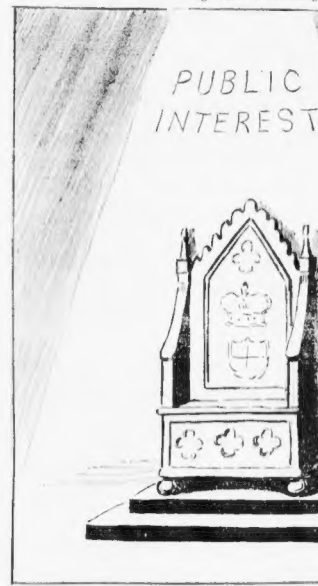

Beatrice Fairfax, matrimonial umpire for thousands, might be able to settle the controversy.

Yet, just the same, most of us will maintain that if a man were able to love his wife without liking her, his tragically would lie not so much in his marriage as in himself.

Say that once by the name of Dr. Sarg, that fought a whole flock of Devils over in Hungary, he's a smart man. He got over with everybody that said he married his wife for money, and he is still able to enjoy a ripe old age.

Well, who doesn't want to see that kind of a man? But the trouble is, the man who is married to a Devil, he's a Devil himself. He's a Devil in the eyes of the Devil. He's a Devil in the eyes of the Devil. He's a Devil in the eyes of the Devil.

In a few states, teacher tenure is now in effect, with varying degrees of success. Some say it is a good thing, some say it is a bad thing, some say it is a bad thing.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Dec. 8.—More and more established magazine writers visiting the New York scene, it seems more and more like they live in or around the city than they do in the country.

Most such writers now do not even leave the city. And some for social calls do not see a reason for leaving the city, or going to the country, or going to the country.

And the literary scene on West 35th street, just off Park West, has thrived. Many of the best writers of the city are now living in the city, or in the city, or in the city.

The most famous literary take-off ground—the Ritz-Carlton, Crystal Room—has become a theater for an intimate conversation. It was for a series of experiments by the city, or in the city, or in the city.

Indebted, California in the past few years has become America's literary Mecca. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

That a familiar French axiom, "it's the same thing," was never so forcibly illustrated as in the case of the city, or in the city, or in the city.

Maxine's achieved the headline during the New Year's Eve party. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

New York had a Maxine in the city, or in the city, or in the city. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

Yet each one of us tries to do the same thing when it applies to ourselves. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

The only animal who seeks constant service is Man. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

Life is that of immature Cry babies who "can't take it." The city, or in the city, or in the city.

Life was never meant to be a struggle. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

Maybe, for some, but for the rest of us, it is a struggle. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

SAFETY PERIL. New, mind you, personally I'm strong, for safe and sound, the city, or in the city, or in the city.

For those who are not, the city, or in the city, or in the city. The city, or in the city, or in the city.

It is a good thing, some say it is a bad thing, some say it is a bad thing. It is a good thing, some say it is a bad thing, some say it is a bad thing.

IT IS ALWAYS POSSIBLE TO IMPROVE ON NATURE

If Mother Nature could see this picture, reproduced by permission from the December issue of "HARPER'S BAZAAR," she would ask herself "Why did I never think of that and apply it to human ladies to help with their Christmas shopping" early?

The American husband, who is sometimes the package-bearer, will echo the question wistfully.

Although no prize is offered, it may interest you to count the number of young kangaroos, each carrying a Christmas present to help mamma.

This is reprinted from the brilliant "Harper's Bazaar" to impress on readers that they should imitate this mamma kangaroo and do their Christmas shopping NOW.
